

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
About the Editors	ix
Contributors	xiii

Introduction: Good Health Depends on Better Communication and Stronger Partnerships	1
Ruth J. Katz, Maureen Byrnes, and Brian C. Castrucci

Part I. Why Public Health Needs to Do Better

1. Perceptions of Public Health: The Gaps Between Insiders and Other Leaders	9
Moriah Robins
2. Communicating for Change: How We Deliver Our Ideas Matters	24
Nat Kendall-Taylor
3. Winning Words and Strategic Stories: Building Public Support for Public Health	39
Doug Hattaway and Eric Zimmermann

Part II. Tools and Perspectives

4. Tools: Effective Messaging and Storytelling for Public Health	53
Mark R. Miller and Rachel Locke

Contents

Part III. Bringing Public Health to Life

5. How to Tell Impactful Stories Soledad O'Brien and Rose Arce	103
6. Think Like a Marketer: Find Your Hook, Make It Beautiful, and Humanize the Numbers Sarah Martin, with contributions by Anna Duin	112
Conclusion—Communication in Public Health: Where We Go from Here Karen DeSalvo	128
References	133
Index	135